It Can't Be Helped. There again lies the cause detail. Detail has whipped her nerves rawthe infinite detail of preparing a small banquet when a man would be much happier set down to a bowl of bread and milk without any fuss. But what's the fun of being married then; with a home to play house with and brand new cooking utensils for toys! And how can the rules of homekeeping be made compatible with the rules of the office? Somehow one can't be happy with disorder and confusion and one loves many white curtains which grow soiled so soon and all the ornaments and prety touches which can't possibly harmonize with an office. And most those offices than at home viewing all this splendor. So there you are!
